Prepare files for handoff

You are preparing to hand your files over to a colleague, who will continue working in Word, Excel, and PowerPoint.

Find the final versions of the work you did in Wissly. Check that these files are in the Results folder, and save them there if they are not.

Open each available file in the corresponding Microsoft Office application and decide whether your colleague could continue working with it. If more work is needed, explain what remains to be done.

If an earlier task did not produce a file, or you decided not to share it, check only the files that are available. Tell the moderator if you cannot open a file.

When you have finished checking, return to this page and select Record progress. You do not need to send the files.
